On motion of a delegate from the Seventh district General Alger was invited to the platform. As he came slowly up the sisle he was given a tremendous ovation. When the name of Luce was pronounced hearty applause followed. Chairman Watkins introduced General Alger, who said that if he could command the words to express the sentiment of his heart it would gave his hearers greater pleasure than was possible as it was. The General said that the air was full of rumors-the last that General Harrison had withdrawn. He supposed that when the hard-fisted farmer Luce was re-nominated it would be reported that he had withdrawn in order to cheer up the scared Democracy. To Michigan he owed everything he had in life, and to the Republicans of Michigan he owed all the honor he had, however un-deserving. "Whatever I have," he said, "whatever I can do, is at the command of the Repub-ican party of Michigan." Committees on permanent organization, credentials and resolutions were named, in accordsace with the action of the several caucuses. In the latter, General Alger and ex-Senator

Ferry were mentioned as electors-at-large. Colonel Duffield offered a resolution eulogistic of Sheridan, and extending sympathy to his family. It was unanimously adopted by a rising Republican Speech by a Former Democrat. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

Paris, Ill., Aug. 8 .- Hon. Charles Vorhis, of Windsor, Ill., addressed the people in the public park in this city this evening and delivered an excellent discourse. The meeting was held under the auspices of the John A. Logan Republican Dlub, and was largely attended by people of all parties. Mr. Vorhis was for eight years the Democratic State Senator from his district, but s now stumping the State for Harrison, Morton and protection. For this reason a large number of Democrats went to hear why the speaker had shanged his political views.

THE COMMUNE'S RED FLAG.

Demonstrations at Paris Incident to the Funeral of General Endes.

Paris, Aug. 8.—The funeral of General Endes, the ex-Communist who dropped dead while addressing a body of strikers on Sunday, took place to day. Fifty thousands persons gathered in the streets adjacent to the house of the deceased. and thousands lined the route to the cemetery, along which cavalry was stationed. The other troops belonging to the Paris garrison were held within their barracks in readiness for any emergency. Traffic in the streets through which the cortege passed was suspended and the stores were closed. Fifteen thousand persons marched in front of the hearse bearing the remains. They wore bouquets of red immortelles. M. Basly, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, was present, and he and M. Rochefort were greeted with cheers and shouts of "Vive la revolution," and "Vive la Commune." The procession started at 11 o'clock. The pall-bearers were MM. Vailliant, Le Français and Arnold, members of the Commune of 1871, and M. Ostyn. Louise Michel marched after the hearse. A brigade of police headed the procession. Large bodies of workingmen and strikers followed quietly. The waiters and hair-dressers in the line were noisy, and demanded that the red flags, which were carried covered, be unfurled. The crowds along the route shouted "Vive la Commune" as the hearse passed. When the procession reached the Boulevard Voltaire, three red flags were unfurled. A commissary of police attempted to seize one, when some one in the crowd fired a mark. Another commissary was beaten with sticks. M. Rochefort was set upon by Anarchists, who handled him quite severely. The police were powerless before the menacing attitude of the mob. The gen-darms made a charge in front of Prince Eugene barracks, striking in every direction with the butt ends of their muskets. They succeeded in releasing the police who had been surrounded by the mob, and captured the red flags. When the procession arrived at the mairie of the Eleventh arrondissement a revolver was fired and a bomb thrown close to the police station, but the bomb did not explode. The reserve force of police left the station, and charged the crowd with drawn swords, wounding and taking into custody many persons. The procession continued on its way to the ceme-tery, but grew smaller as it progressed. A numper of orations were delivered at the grave amid tries of "Vive la Commune" and "Vive la revoation." At the conclusion of the orations the gathering dispersed. The police did not oppose the display of red flags inside the cemetery. After the conclusion of the ceremonies at the cemetery, the persons composing the procession withdrew quietly. M. Rochefort, who rode in an open carriage, was in some places greeted with hoots and cries of "A bas Rochefort," and "A bas Boulanger." The conflict on Boulevard Voltaire was the most serious event of the day. The rioting lasted fifteen minutes. When the crowd retreated before the charge of the gen-darmes they left their flags and a number of funeral wreaths behind them on the pavement. Fifteen persons were wounded, and twenty-five arrests were made. M. Scudey, secretary of the league for the suppression of the registry offices, was arrested on the charge of inamong those who attended the funeral were Henry Rochefort and Louise Michel. Many flowers and wreaths were placed upon the coffin. The procession accompanying the remains was tranquil until the Boulevard Voltaire was reached. Here the mob cheered the Commune and displayed a number of red flags. A detachment of the Garde de Paris charged the crowds and captured the flags. The government had adopted strict measures to suppress any outbreak, and orders were given to the police to use their arms if their lives were menaced. The Bourse De Travail was closed by order of the authorities, and was occupied by a military detachment.

Lord Salisbury Tells What the Tories Have Done for Ireland. LONDON, Aug. 8.-The Ministers were banquetted by the Lord Mayor to-night. Replying to the usual toast, Lord Salisbury said the great curse of Ireland was poverty. The government Was not able to diminish poverty or to enrich men, but it could enable men, without interference, to enrich themselves. The government had been successful in lessening the tyranny which an association exereised over the Irish people, and had increased the sanctity of contracts. If the government of Areland were administered with the same judgment and firmness as now for a few years longer, the liberty and prosperity of the country would be restored.

Merchant Tailors' Exchange.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 .- The executive committee of the Merchant Tailors' National Exchange adjourned this afternoon. Among the more important measures adopted was a law making it obligatory upon every exchange to issue a rating book containing the names of unreliable and delinquent customers, and also to supply each exchange in every city of the country with a copy of such book for the use of its members, so as to prevent a delinquent from being able to order clothes anywhere where an exchange exists. Instructions will be issued to subordinate exchanges to establish trades schools to teach boys and girls the art of tailoring. This morning the members of the committee were escorted to the White House by Representative Butterworth and introduced to the President.

THEY COULDN'T HIT KEEFE

The Indianapolis Team Again Succumbs to the Skill of the New York Pitcher.

The Hoosiers Make Only Five Hits, but Give a Fine Display of Fielding-Other League and Association Games-Racing News.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NEW YORK, Aug. 8.-The Indianapolis team found the same difficulty to overcome in to-day's game that every club has found recently when they ran up against the machinations of Keefe. Like the others, Harry Spence's boys found the difficulty insurmountable. They couldn't bunch hits; in fact, they didn't make but five altogether, and as a result the Giants won their eighth straight game, and Keefe was credited with his eighteenth successive victory. Boyle was in the box for the visitors, and he pitched a pretty good game, although he gave a base on balls and fumbled a grounder at a critical stage, which gave the home team two runs. It should be said, however, that the grounder was an awkward one to handle, and the error excusable. Outside the batting department, the Hoosiers did well enough to win any game, particularly Glasscock, Bassett and McGeachy, the latter making three brilliant plays at right field. Denny was still unable to play, owing to the finger he split in Monday's game, and Esterbrook was obliged to lay off on account of an injury received at Detroit. Their places were well filled by Buckly and Daily. Both men made base hits and both fielded well. The Giants played a great game in the field, Slattery making the only fielding error. They were not very strong at the bat, but they made their hits at the right time. Tiernan and Ward led with the stick, Tiernan making a hit every time he got a chance. He also did some fine running. as three stolen bases on Myers and Glasscock testify. The Giants scored in the second inning, after two hands were out, Whitney hit safely to center field, Slattery bunted the ball, and Boyle fumbled it with one hand; then Keefe got a base on balls. This filled the bases, and Ward's single brought in two runs. In the second, Tierman made a twobase hit and scored on Connor's single. New York's fourth and last run was made in the seventh on Ward's safe hit, Richardson's sacrifice, a wild pitch, and Tiernan's single. The Indianians were saved a shut out by Hines's

BOSTON, 3; PITTSBURG, 3. Boston, Aug. 8.-Luck favored the Bostons in the first half of to-day's game, and that and the poor base running by the visitors kept the latter from scoring for seven innings, although men reached third base in each of the first three innings. In the same time Morris's pitching, backed by perfect field work, prevented any of the home team from crossing the plate. A combination of hits and errors gave both sides their runs in the eighth and ninth. The game was revolver at him, but the bullet went wide of its | called on account of darkness. Attenance, 2,100.

Hannibal Hamlin's Story of Gov. Kent.

Time-2:2719, 2:27, 2:27.

Lewiston Journal. "The only time," said Mr. Hamlin, "that Gov. Edward Kent was known to make a joke was one winter day just as he left Seavey's Hotel, at Unity, in Walde county. On getting into the sleigh he found he had forgotten to take a cigar. and he called the bar boy and said: 'Please get me a cipar.' (It was before the day of lucifer matches.) The bar boy hurried away, and pretty soon came back puffing a brand new eigar, and, pulling it out of his mouth, handed it to Gov. Kent. 'Well,' said his Excellency, 'I suppose I could stand that easy enough before election, but it's a little too much after election.' The boy went back, and finally the Governor drove off with a cigar of his own dedication."

The Conway Murder Trial at Muncle.

Special to the Indiana, ous Journal. MUNCIE, Aug 8 .- In the case of the State of Indiana vs. Charles Conway, for murder, the State continued the introduction of its evidence this morning, and the probability is that they will rest this afternoon, and the defense will begin. Owing to the circumstances, and the parties involved, the case is one of considerable interest. George Adams, the man who was killed, lived in Madison county. His widow is in attendance upon the trial. A brief history of the case, as developed by the evidence presented by the prosecution, is this: On the 19th day of May last Charles Conway, in company with Elmer Conway, a cousin whom he was visiting in Tipton county, went to Elwood, Madison county, about ten miles distant. While there they met George Melrose, and all three of them drank more or less during the day, and were somewhat intoxicated when they started home in the afternoon. They had also met George Adams while in Elwood, and he, in company with Augustus and William Hutchinson, started for home just in advance of Charles Conway, Elmer Conway and George Melrose. George Adams had also been drinking some during the day. When about six and a half miles north of Elwood, Adams stopped the wagon in which he was riding, and delivered to James Ogle some cabbage plants which he had brought to town for him. Shortly after leaving town, Elmer Conway had gone forward to ride in the wagon with Adams and the Hutchinsons, leaving Melrose and Charles Conway together. While the cabbage plants were being delivered, or just as Adams's wagon drove on, Melrose and Charles Conway drove up and Melrose commenced to curse and swear at Ogle, who was then going towards his home. The wagon in which Adams was had gone but a short distance, when it stopped, and Adams jumped out, and started back towards where he had left Ogle, calling to Ogle, as he did so, to come back, and saying that he wanted to pay him for some hogs which he had bought of him: Ogle then turned and walked back, meeting Adams near the end of a culvert which crosses the road at the scene of the difficulty. In the meantime Melrose had jumped from the buck-board in which he was riding, and came up to Ogle still cursing him Adams, coming up, told him to stop it; to not abuse Ogle any further. Melrose commenced to flourish a knife at Adams, and turned upon him and commenced cursing. Adams jumped back and picked up a piece of a fence rail which was lying on the road, which he swung around, bringing it down upon the left arm and shoulder of Melrose, twice. As he struck the second blow Charles Conway came up behind him, and a little to the left of him, and struck him on the left arm, just at the elbow, or a little above the elbow, uson which Adams dropped the rail, and Conway, jumping back, drew a revolver with his left hand from his hip-pocket, cocked it, and leveled it at Adams. At that mement, Elmer Conway, who had been a witness to the scene, ran up and took the revolver from him, or told him to put it up, which he did. The witnesses differ in their statements as to whether Charles Conway had a knife in his hand when they saw him strike Adams on the arm; some say that they saw a knife, and some say that they did not. When Adams saw the revolver leveled at him he ran around Ogle, who was standing near, and then started off towards the Hutchinson wagon. As he went he seemed to slip and fall. but recovering himself, went on, and was met by Augustus Hutchinson, who caught him by the left arm, from which the blood was gushing in a stream. Hutchinson assisted him to the house of William Rybolt, only a short distance off, and in the yard, just before reaching the house, Adams fainted. Physicians were immediately sent for, and a cord was tightly bound around the arm, which stauched the flow of blood. Dr. McTernan, of Independence, Madison county, was the first physician on the scene. When he arrived Mr. Adams was unconscious, and there was no blood flowing from the wound in his arm, nor did there any blood flow when he removed the chord and stitched up the wound. Having dressed the wound, the doctor left, with instructions that he should be called in mediately should the blood begin to flow. He had hardly reached home before a messenger came, saying that hemorrhage had set in, and returning to Adams he found the wound bleeding slightly. Dr. Sigler, of Elwood, had by this time arrived, and together the two physicians tied the artery in the arm, which had been severed. They then left the patient. During the night hemorrhage again set in, and he died at about 5:30 on the morning of the 20th of May. While lying there he told his wife that he did not expect he would live. He also told his brother that he did not expect to live, that Conway had cut him with a knife, and requested his brother to see that Conway received justice, and that he care for his wife and children. Charles Conway, in about five .minutes after Adams had been taken to Rybolt's yard, started off towards his uncle's, Benjamin Conway, Elmer Conway's father. Mrs. Wm. Hines testified that she saw him passing her house, at about that time in the evening, and he being a stranger to her, and having seen him going to town in the morning, with Elmer Conway, she stopped at the window and looked out at him. Just as she did so he took from his pocket a knife, and opening it partially, seemed to be examining it carefully, first on one side and then the other. He then passed out of her sight. That evening he went in company with his cousin, Elmer Conway, to Windfall, where he was taken to the house of one Jack Lawson, and that was the last seen of him by any of the witnesses, until he was arrested at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the 20th day of May, by the sheriff of Henry county.

Ed Seibert, one of the State's witnesses, testified last evening that he was confined in the Madison county jail and overheard a conversa-tion between Melrose and Charles Conway, in which Conway offered Melrose $300 if he would "own up" to having done the cutting in selfdefense, which offer was refused by Melrose, he saying that he did not do it, and he would not own up to having done it. This statement was substantially corroborated by Melrose, who was on the stand this morning. Melrose is also under indictment for this same offense, and will be tried in Madison county at a later date.

The prosecution is working with great earnestness and zeal in this case, and the defendant's attorneys are fiercely contesting every inch of the ground sought to be gained. At this time only a few witnesses for the defense have testispecial to the Indianapolis Journal. MARSHALL, Aug. 8.—There was a remarkable and highly amusing incident connected with yesterday's Democratic rally which is just now the theme of conversation. In one of the country delegations was a large banner, with the legend "Free Whisky" inscribed on it in large letters, and borne by a young Democrat on horseback. As soon as the parade was over, the bearer broke for a saloon at once, and on going in set the banner against the wall outside. Men began pouring into the saloon—the proprietor is a strong Democrat-calling for whisky and then hastily retiring. The bar-keeper was dumfounded, and could not understand why so many were trying to defraud him out of his liquor. Finally he went to the front door and there saw the large "free whisky" banner standing against the wall. The mystery was then explained, but not until the saloon-keeper had suffered considerable loss.

Explosion and Fire,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MENTONE, Aug. 8.-At 6 o'clock to-night a terrific explosion was heard in the direction of Craft & Mills's chemical laboratory, situated in the outskirts of town. A moment later the entire building was enveloped in flames. Hundreds of people rushed to the scene, but were unable to render any assistance. G. R., Craft, one of the proprietors, -was, fortunately, the only person in the building at the time, and narrowly escaped a horrible death. The laboratory was used for the manufacture of Craft's distemper cure and other veterinary medicines, and the explosion was probably caused by some of the volatile oils coming in contact with fire in the furnaces below. The estimated loss is $4,300, but it may be much more, as there was a large quantity of medicine destroyed. The laboratory will be rebuilt immediately on a larger scale.

HAYTI TRANQUIL AGAIN.

President Salomon Has Strangled the Revolution for a Time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.-The Sun prints the following: Those directly interested, from commercial or other reasons, in Haytian affairs have been in a state of alarm and doubt since the recent revolutionary episodes. These embraced the firing of the city of Port-au-Prince by incendiaries at various and simultaneous points, the destruction of 500 houses, the burning of the official buildings, including the government printing office, the Department of the Interior, the Chamber of Deputies, the Protestant cathedral, and other notable structures. These conflagrations occurred on the 4th and 7th of July, and they were supposed to be the fore-runners of bloody revolution on the island. But the fear proved to be unfounded. Mr. E. D. Bassett, the consul-general at this port, is now at Port-au-Prince, and has been there since the firing of the city on July 7. Frequent letters have been received from him since the troubles began in the capital, and the latest advices received from him day before yesterday report complete quiet on the island and throughout the city. An official attached to the embassy said to the Sun reporter, referring to the recent publications: "I cannot imagine the motive for such statements as have been printed in New York representing the condition of affairs at Port-au-Prince as marked by assassination, rapine, looting and murder. To be sure there were two disastrous fires in the capital, but there was no looting, and only a single case of detected incendiarism, and the drunken culprit, after a fair trial was summarily shot. Nor was there any assault on an American lady by four soldiers as has been described. There is only one American lady in Port-au-Prince, and she is the wife of the American minister, Mr. Thompson. Of course when one-eighth of a city, embracing a population of 48,000, is burned up, there is naturally great excitement and exaggeration. "Now, as to the statement that President Salomon has sent $3,800,000 out of the country as a personal nest-egg for future uses, that is preposterous on its face. There is not that amount of ready coin, in the whole country. Hayti has, in fact, a contract with the Credit Industriel of France, which collects the revenue and banks it, and therefore the President has no actual control over the funds of the republic. represented. He has a salary of $25,000 a year. As for being a Voodooist, he is, in fact, like his wife, a devout Roman Catholic, the religion of the country, and a close personal friend of the Roman Catholic bishop of Hayti, which, like the Latin powers of Europe, has a concordat with the Pope."

"And that was the reason of the recent disturbance?" "Yes. An idea got abroad that President Salomon was about to retire voluntarily from his to expire in 1893. When he observed these signs he publicly declared he would remain un til the end of his term, reinforced the gendarmerie in Port-au-Prince by 3,000 men, and thus secured himself against any sudden coup. The two aspirants for his place were Senator Lege time and Deputy F. Manigut, and for these the President sent and they were induced to become voluntary exiles from the country."

"Have you any further apprehension of trouble?" "Of course it is impossible to say that a crisis may not arise. Salomon, however, is backed by an army of 25,000 men, with only 6,000,000 of population to look after, and these troops are armed with Remington rifles. As long as the conservative sentiment of the island can be made to prevail, the present government will stand. The commercial interests involved are great, for from New York alone the exports to Hayti amount to $5,000,000 annually, while the imports are about $3,000,000."

ROMANCE OF A SLAVE.

He Is Zachary Taylor's Son and a Full Blooded White Man.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph. John Taylor, of Cartersville, Ga., could never pose for the hero in Gebault's "Un Homme Sans Une Histoire." He claims to be the son of President Zachary Taylor, to have been taken into Kentucky by his father's orders and subsequently to have served in the Mexican war. Although as white as his master, Taylor was brought up among the mulattoes on the plantation of William R. Johnson, a great Kentucky horseman in those days, and always supposed himself to be possessed of a slight taint of negro blood, but after the death of General Taylor, in 1850, the secret leaked out that his mother was: young Spanish creole, who died a year after his birth. He had then been married to a mulatto about six weeks. Near the close of the rebellion he had accumulated a fortune of $80,000, which was invested in tobacco when the bombardment of Atlanta occurred. It was then that the federal soldiery. armed with an order from headquarters to search certain warehouses, broke open and confiscated the entire contents of Taylor's barn and left him almost penniless. A tobacco warehouse was of great value at that time. Taylor happily recollected his services as valet in 1846-7, and what a good hair-dresser he had been. It was of frequent occurrence for him to be complimented by Northern and Southern officers alike on his phenomenal skill as a tonsortal artist in those days, so he sold his house and personal effects, bought for a song a shaving palace on Decatur street, Atlanta, and commenced to make money. He had the entree, as it were, into military circles, and had for regular customers at various times Generals Sher son, Bob Toombs, Ben Hill and Alexander H. Stephens. His shop was the rendezvous of mili tary characters of all shades of distinction, from sutler's boy to the commanding general himself. In addition to this Major Taylor, as he was called, carried on a huge boarding and gambling

Soon after a terrible order was issued which forced Taylor to go South and be shot for a rebe. or go North and be under federal protection. There was no time to think; he was obliged to make an immediate exodus. He tried frantically, but in vain, he told me as I sat in his shor at Cartersville the other day, to sell for $1.25 a massive plate mirror which had cost him nearly $50. He was offered $10 in gold for his house and shaving palace, with fixtures. He fled to Chattanooga, and engaged himself to General Steadman as a body-servant. In the summer of 1865 he came to Cartersville, and is now ensconced in a little 12x14 shop, shaving the beards of his occasional patrons and ruminating on the past. He has never since set foot in Atlanta. and says he never will. The man's appearance is striking, and his resemblance to old "Rough and Ready" is pronounced. Taylor is now ir his sixtieth year.

Piantng-Mill Burned.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich., Aug. 8.—At 3:45 o'clock this afternoon, a fire broke out in Charles Lee's planing mill, and in a few seconds the entire structure and adjacent sheds, filled with stock, were enveloped in flames, which communicated to the lumber piles on the dock quickly consuming 1.600,000 feet of lumber. Ten dwellings were totally destroyed, a number of others badly damaged. Lee's loss is $70,000, with no insurance. The other losses aggregate $40,000, with little or no insurance. At 11:30 P. M. the fire was under control.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"-the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money?"

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.
